session 4: intermolecular forces key concepts in this session we compare intramolecular forces and intermolecular forces identify types of intermolecular forces identify the relationship between the state of substances and the intermolecular forces present a guide to intermolecular forces - mindset learn - in grade 11, learners will have already studied atomic combinations and molecular structure in more detail. by now they will be familiar with molecular geometry and how molecular shapes affect the polarity of a molecule.

•intermolecular forces are the attractive forces holding particles together in the condensed (liquid and solid) phases of matter •result from coulombic attractions –dependent on the magnitude of the charge –dependent on distance between charges •weaker than forces of ionic bonding •involve partial charges chapter 14 intermolecular forces - web.gccaz - chapter 14 - intermolecular forces 14.1 types of intermolecular forces what is the difference between a bond and an intermolecular force? bonds: between atoms. this is the force that holds atoms together within a molecule aka intramolecular force. polar and nonpolar covalent bonds are examples of bonds. activity: intermolecular forces - concord consortium - activity: intermolecular forces f or the t eacher summary in this activity, students will use a simulation to investigate different types of intermolecular forces (london dispersion and dipole-dipole). in the analysis that follows the activity, they will relate imfs (including hydrogen bonding) to physical properties (boiling point and solubility). assessment
